Modern Art

Lots of people get confused about the difference between modern art and contemporary art. Modern art is art created in Europe during the mid-nineteenth century up until the mid to late twentieth century. An example is the work of Wassily Kandinsky.

Contemporary Art

Contemporary art is art which has been made by a living artist, or art which has been made recently. Neither modern nor contemporary describes the way the artwork looks, merely the timeframe in which it was created. An example of contemporary art is the work of Frank Auerbach.
